Re: J.P. v. Strategic Delivery Solutions, et als.
22-cv-07614

Dear Judges Padin and Clark,

Defense counsel is dishonest in his representation of "evidence contradicting plaintiff's representations, regarding the privacy and confidentiality of his medical condition, and diagnosis."

By defense counsel's own admission, plaintiff made it explicitly clear, in his present motion pleadings before the Court, that he was involved in a current suit against Google, for transmitting his protected health and disability information from government databases etc; essentially, the very information defense counsel has annexed in his sur-reply.

The cases annexed were filed with the Courts, without knowledge that they would appear on Google, to the public at large; hence the action against Google.

Defense counsel is well aware of this, and is attempting to mislead the Court in his sur-reply.

Plaintiff had a natural expectation that his name would be Googled in this instant matter, he actually stated it in his motion papers, nothing was hidden; as any reasonable person would agree.

There is a significant difference between protected health and disability information being stored on a Court's database, versus it being broadcasted on Google, simply by entering plaintiff's name.

Defense counsel is wasting the Court's time, has inundated the Court with his myriad of papers; he will clearly do anything for billable hours, he is also frivolously using the Court to effect a pathetic scare tactic, while misleading the Court; all which offend the ethics of the Court; for these reasons, the Court should consider sanctions sua sponte.

As an "officer of the Court," he also fails to request sanctions by way of separate motion, as the Rules require - his behavior is quacky, and outside conformity of the Court's decorum and standards.

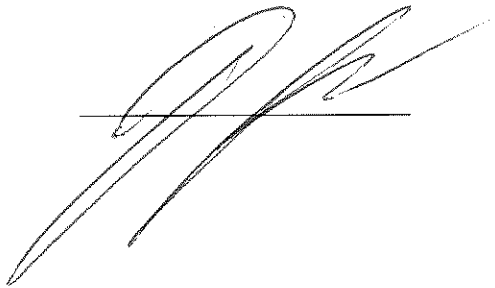

Separately, to date, the Court has granted three Orders within 24 hours of receiving electronic letter motions from defense, without permitting opposition from the plaintiff; who does not file electronically. Plaintiff requests an opportunity to respond going forward.

Last, plaintiff requests a 90 day stay of the instant matter, to secure counsel, also to receive and recover from surgery.

See Exhibit A-1

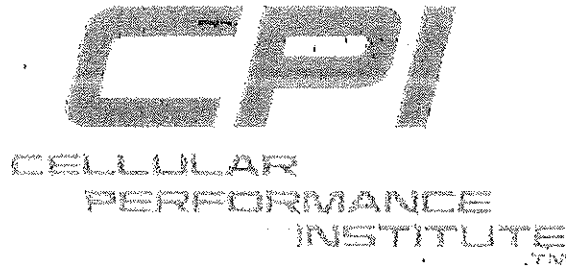

Should the Court prefer a formal motion to stay the proceeding, plaintiff will oblige.

Respectfully Submitted,
